MAYOR HEDGES WILL SHAKEUP POLICE FOR C E

Says Re-organization of Civil Service Commission Stalls Action.

Mayor Benton T. Hedges announced Friday that as soon as it is possible he intends to order a shakeup in the city police department. The mayor said that the only thing which has kept him from demanding the shakeup before this time was that the president of the city's civil service commission, W. H. Mason, has been seriously ill at his home for the past six weeks and an organization of the commission has been impossible.

Hedges in his appointments for his second term as mayor named Bert Lyle as a member of the commission succeeding J. A. McLaughlin. Samuel Lindsey is the third member of the commission. McLaughlin was clerk of the commission and it is necessary that the commission meet to name a new clerk.

Just what Hedges' intentions so far as a shakeup in the police department is concerned is not known.

The mayor Friday said that at least two of the members of the department will be asked to resign and will then call a meeting of the civil service commission to name officers to take their places.

He did not say, however, who the officers who will be asked to resign are.

It has been known for a long while that a shakeup was inevitable but no action was foreseen until Hedges made his statement Friday.

If the mayor asks for resignations of at least two of his officers it will be necessary for the civil service commission to receive applications for the offices and to name the men who have the highest grades.

TO EXAMINE BUS DRIVERS

Attorney General States That Men Should Pass Examination To Drive.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—A movement was begun by state officials here today to remove all Ohio school bus drivers, who may be judged as unfit, following a statement by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman that all drivers of school buses will be required to pass a physical examination and be licensed as chauffeurs as provided by state laws.

This action will occur, the attorney general said, in all cases, whether the bus owned by the driver or by the school board.

All inspectors in the department of motor vehicles were today notified of the requiremnts by Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles. A state-wide inspection of all school buses and drivers is under way as the result of the third bus tragedy in Ohio during January, which occurred at Berea last Wednesday, when the lives of nine school children and the driver of the bus were killed when the bus was struck by a passenger train.

Enforcement of the chauffeur's license law has, heretofore, been left in the hands of local authorities, and crippled and almost totally blind men have been given licenses, according to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

Drivers of school buses, in addition to being licensed as chauffeurs, are also required to possess a certificate as to their moral character and qualifications for the position, Bettman said.

Ira E. Sprankle, superintendent of investigation of the state public utilities commission, said that the report of the commission's investigation into the Berea crash, will be given late today. He pointed out that the commission's jurisdiction covered only the railroad angle of the accident.

ASK CHICAGO EXPENSE CUT

Committee Has 50 Millions For Aid If Officials Will Co-operate.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25—An ultimatum demanding that Chicago's city administration cut its expenses to the bone today accompanied word that the proposed $50,000,000 civic rescue pool has been collected and is available to the fight to avert financial collapse of the city and county governments.

Chairman Silas H. Strawn of the relief committee announced that the taxpayers' pool obtained by the sale of tax anticipation warrants has been collected.

Not one cent of the emergency fund will be released to the city government for payment of overdue wages and other expenses until the public officials agree to cooperate with the pool in cutting all expenses to the bone, the relief committee announced.

"There is nothing available for spendthrifts," reads the committee's demand.

According to Chairman Strawn, large property owners who have pledged their funds to avert the immient financial crisis will not pay over their millions until they have been assured that the funds will be spent to keep county hospitals, schools, sanitariums, and police and fire departments in operation.

Yesterday the county board voted to pay 400 employes their back salaries in tax anticipation "scrip" instead of currency. It is hoped they will have better luck cashing the "scrip" than county officials have in inducing bankers to cash them, county leaders point out.

More than 13,000 school teachers experienced a "payless pay day" yesterday as the school board performed mental gymnastics in an effort to find cash to meet running expenses.

A resolution calling of Governor Louis L. Emmerson for a special session of the state legislature was passed by the city council yesterday in an effort to obtain emergency relief in addition to the rescue pool.

At the same session the council voted its twice-vetoed 1930 budget of $55,314,947. This budget calls for a serious reduction in police and fire protection as well as limitation of county employes.

GRAIN COMPANY DIRECTORS ARE ENTHUSED BY REPORT; TWO NEW OFFICERS NAMED

The stockholders of the Pickaway Grain Co., attending the annual meeting which was held in the Farm Bureau home, Thursday, Jan. 23, were very much enthused over the business handled cooperatively through their organization.

S. L. Warner, manager, in presenting a statement of the business, outlined sources through which income was derived. This classification consisted of wheat, corn, fencing material, coal, feed, seed, tile and oats. The business conducted through the organization throughout the past year was over $200,000. In addition to maintaining a market on produce of the patrons of the organization, the company is paying back in stock and patronage dividends $4100. Mr. Warner discussed in detail a few of the problems which have been met in the operation of the year's business. He also explained the feed service which is available to all farmers, stating that the installation of modern grinding and mixing machinery afforded the company an opportunity to process home grown feeds into practical and economic feeding rations for poultry, dairy cattle and hogs.

County Agent H. S Lewis discussed the value of the co-operative elevator as an agency through which improved practices in production and marketing might be expanded L. G. Foster, of the Rural Economics Department, Ohio State University, discussed "Essentials to a Successful Cooperative Program." Mr. Foster from an experience of some 25 years in cooperative elevator territory stressed as the three most important requirements for success, competent management, adequate finance and a sufficient or adequate volume of business. Mr. Foster congratulated the local co-operative upon the healthy condition in which their co-operative services had been administered through the past year. Foster stated that the successful cooperative must recognize the farmer producer and encourage him to assume his individual responsibility toward the cooperative program and the cooperative organization of which he is or may become a part. Mr Foster stated that the chief mistakes in cooperative ventures of the past have been in stationary leadership has too frequently attempted to build the cooperative from the top down instead of training control instead of fixing responsibility among the producer members.

YOO HOO AGAIN DRAWS CROWD

Performance To Be Staged Again Saturday Evening —Crowd Expected.

Another capacity crowd attended the musical comedy, "Yoo-Hoo" last night and were just as well pleased as the one which saw the first performance on Thursday night Nothing but praise has been heard from all sides yesterday and today of this wonderful production. Those who were fortunate enough to see it state that "Yoo-Hoo" is what it was advertised a "funny, jazzy, dancy musical comedy. In fact there is hardly a moment when there is not a outbreak of laughter. In many places it was necessary to wait for the laughter to stop, and encore after encore was given to the fine musical numbers.

No doubt a great deal of the success can be attributed to Bales' orchestra which accompanied all musical numbers with Irving Plain, the director welding the baton and Mrs Plain at the piano

There have been so many requests for another performance that the committee has agreed to give an extra show tonight at 8.30 p m This performance will have the same charming dance numbers, the same rollicking comedy and the same spectacular costumes, scenery and lighting effects.

Director Plain has arranged a special beautiful number for tonight in which the prizes will be awarded to the winning contestants. The contest will be closed late this afternoon and the first announcement of the winners will be made from the stage

All in all, "Yoo-Hoo" is unquestionably the most successful local talent show ever staged here and as was stated this morning by one of last night's audience is a "big show for a big cause." Any one wishing to help the American Legion drum corps purchase new instruments can do so by witnessing a high class fast moving musical comedy which they will not soon forget

S. commissioners. Some dry leaders wanted the first measure amended to include the industrial alcohol section while others protested the latter bill was unconstitutional.

The prohibition spotlight meanwhile shifted from Capitol Hill to Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. On the eve of a trip to Europe, Bishop Cannon issued a vigorous statement attacking nullificationists, denouncing Roman Catholic opposition to prohibition and appealing to congress to enact legislation and provide men and money to put down "this twentieth century whiskey rebellion."

The Bishop names too in his charges against Roman Catholics. He cited Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, the vatican organ, "Osservatore Romano," and Dr. John A. Ryan, director of the Catholic National Welfare organization, as leading the attack on prohibition.

JUDGE ABERNETHY IS MUCH IMPROVED

The condition of Judge I. N. Abernethy who suffered a bruised hip when he fell in his office Tuesday is greatly improved and he is well on the road to recovery.

DOORN, HOLLAND, Jan. 25 — Former Kaiser Wilhelm will be 71 years old on Monday. A simple celebration has been planned entirely unlike the elaborate celebration of last year. Only the former Kaiser's closest relatives and friends will come here to the birthday festivities. Last year even the most distant Hohenzollerns attended.

Aftermath of an Air Tragedy

Sixteen persons, eight women and eight men, were killed instantly when the giant T. A. T. Maddux air liner crashed and burst into flames while trying to make a forced landing about ten miles south of San Clemente, Calif. The plane, known as the "race special," was bound from Agua Caliente, Mexico, to Los Angeles when the fatal crash occurred. All of the bodies were burned to a crisp, most of them beyond recognition.

POPULATION OF PEN INCREASED

Ohio Penal Institution Has 491 More Prisoners in 1929 Than In 1928.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25.—Population of the Ohio State Penitentiary here, was increased by 491 prisoners during 1929, according to the statistical report of the institution for the period between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31.

A total of 1799 men were admitted last year and 1308 were released, the report states.

Various courts throughout the state submitted 1645 prisoners, 80 parole violators were returned and 35 escaped prisoners were returned during the year.

Three hundred and ninety-two prisoners were paroled, 54 were lost through expiration of sentences; 23 by commutations and pardons; 70 by deaths; five by electrocution and 30 by escape. One man admitted through error was released, and 421 were absent without leave.

The average population of the institution for 1929 was 4,672.

One prisoner from Cuyahoga-co was electrocuted, one from Franklin, one from Summit, one from Marion and one from Hamilton.

Three hundred and fifty-one men were given sentences for burglary, the outstanding crime for which men were sentenced. Sentences for this crime showed a definite increase in severity. Two men were given life sentences in connection with this crime.

Seventy-seven college men were admitted to the penitentiary in 1929, 34 of them having completed a four-year course.

GIRLS' SCHOOL HEAD RESIGNS

Hal Griswold Announces That Mrs. Elton "Quit Some-Time Ago."

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25— That Mrs. Margaret Elton, superintendent of the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware, resigned "some time ago" was made known here today in an announcement from the office of state welfare director, Hal H. Griswold.

Mrs. Elton, who was appointed to the post by former Governor Vic Donahey, figured in the recent investigation of conditions at the school which was started by Prosecutor Winston W. Hill. The probe was conducted with the cooperation of the welfare department, but no indictments were returned.

Mrs. Elton's resignation will become effective as soon as a new superintendent has been appointed by Director Griswold.

Miss Margaret Shea, E. Main-st is confined to her home by an appendicitis attack.

GRAIN COMPANY DIRECTORS ARE ENTHUSED BY REPORT; TWO NEW OFFICERS NAMED

The stockholders of the Pickaway Grain Co., attending the annual meeting which was held in the Farm Bureau home, Thursday, Jan. 23, were very much enthused over the business handled cooperatively through their organization.

S. L. Warner, manager, in presenting a statement of the business, outlined sources through which income was derived. This classification consisted of wheat, corn, fencing material, coal, feed, seed, tile and oats. The business conducted through the organization throughout the past year was over $200,000. In addition to maintaining a market on produce of the patrons of the organization, the company is paying back in stock and patronage dividends $4100. Mr. Warner discussed in detail a few of the problems which have been met in the operation of the year's business. He also explained the feed service which is available to all farmers, stating that the installation of modern grinding and mixing machinery afforded the company an opportunity to process home grown feeds into practical and economic feeding rations for poultry, dairy cattle and hogs.

County Agent H. S. Lewis discussed the value of the co-operative elevator as an agency through which improved practices in production and marketing might be expanded. L. G. Foster, of the Rural Economics Department, Ohio State University, discussed "Essentials to a Successful Cooperative Program." Mr. Foster from an experience of some 25 years in cooperative elevator territory stressed as the three most important requirements for success, competent management, adequate finance and a sufficient or adequate volume of business. Mr. Foster congratulated the local co-operative upon the healthy condition in which their co-operative services had been administered through the past year. Foster stated that the successful cooperative must recognize the farmer producer and encourage him to assume his individual responsibility toward the cooperative program and the cooperative organization of which he is or may become a part. Mr. Foster stated that the chief mistakes in cooperative ventures of the past have been that visionary leadership has too frequently attempted to build the cooperative from the top down, centralizing control instead of fixing responsibility among the producer members.

The election of directors to fill the terms of directors whose terms have expired resulted in the selection of John Fry Jr., of Jackson-twp and John B. Stevenson of Wayne-twp. Other members of the board of directors are: George C. Gerhart, president; T. M. Glick, vice president and Marvin Steely, secretary.

BELGRADE, Jan. 25.—King Alexander and Queen Marie, of Jugo-Slavia, were safe in their palace today after having had the unusual experience of walking home from a boat-ride. While returning from a hunting expedition they were marooned aboard the royal yacht on the Danube river because of thick fog. The royal couple started out on foot for the nearest town after being landed from the yacht but were picked up after walking some distance by an automobile sent from Novisad.

LONDON, Jan. 25--The German motorship Rhein went ashore today near Robben island, off the South African coast, according to an exchange telegraph dispatch from Cape Town. Tugs are speeding to the vessel's rescue. The passengers are not believed to be in serious danger.

YOO HOO AGAIN DRAWS CROWD

Performance To Be Staged Again Saturday Evening —Crowd Expected.

Another capacity crowd attended the musical comedy, "Yoo-Hoo" last night and were just as well pleased as the one which saw the first performance on Thursday night. Nothing but praise has been heard from all sides yesterday and today of this wonderful production. Those who were fortunate enough to see it state that "Yoo-Hoo" is what it was advertised a "funny, jazzy, dancy musical comedy. In fact there is hardly a moment when there is not a outbreak of laughter. In many places it was necessary to wait for the laughter to stop, and encore after encore was given to the fine musical numbers.

No doubt a great deal of the success can be attributed to Bales' orchestra which accompanied all musical numbers with Irving Plain, the director welding the baton and Mrs. Plain at the piano.

There have been so many requests for another performance that the committee has agreed to give an extra show tonight at 8:30 p. m. This performance will have the same charming dance numbers, the same rollicking comedy and the same spectacular costumes, scenery and lighting effects.

Director Plain has arranged a special beautiful number for tonight in which the prizes will be awarded to the winning contestants. The contest will be closed late this afternoon and the first announcement of the winners will be made from the stage.

All in all, "Yoo-Hoo" is unquestionably the most successful local talent show ever staged here and as was stated this morning by one of last night's audience is a "big show for a big cause." Any one wishing to help the American Lelion drum corps purchase new instruments can do so by witnessing a high class, fast moving musical comedy which they will not soon forget.

COUNTY SURVEYOR ATTENDS HEARING

County Surveyor J. Howard Sweetman was in Columbus Saturday attending a joint meeting with the Franklin-co commissioners concerning the hearing of the Rathmel ditch petition concerning Pickaway and Franklin counties.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY JOBS READY

White May Run For Auditor; Ward and Radcliffe To Ask Sheriff's Job.

A check of the county court house finds that two of the present office holders will not run for re-election in the August primaries. They are Auditor Bryce Briggs and Sheriff Frank Davis.

Briggs, a Democrat, has had two terms as auditor and Davis has also had two terms.

Although no accouncement has been to that effect it has been learned through various channels that Clifford White, former clerk of courts will be after the Democratic nomination for auditor.

John G. "Doggy" Ward Jr., deputy in Davis' office through both his terms has officially tossed his well-known fedora into the circle and is a full fledged candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Charles Radcliffe, Circleville, has been mentioned as a competitor for the nomination although no statement has been made to that effect.

The four year term of County Commissioner John E. Walters, Republican, expires after this year, and it has been announced, although not officially, that he will again be a candidate. Walters' is the only commissioner's term which expires.

Mrs. Mary G. Morris, serving her second term as Recorder, is expected to run for the third although she has made no announcement to that effect.

Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist, serving his initial term, announces that he will be a candidate for nomination on the Democratic ticket. No opposition has yet been announced to Crist.

T. Dell Barr, serving his first term, is certain to ask renomination on the Democratic ticket.

The term of neither judge, J. W. Adkins in common pleas court or E. A. Brown, in probate court expires. Adkins' term runs to Feb. 9, 1935 and that of Judge Brown expires Jan. 1, 1933.

Clerk of Courts Ferd M. Pickens does not make an announcement at this time because his term, which is his first, will be one year and five months longer. A recent act of the legislature extended the present term of clerks of courts in order to have each term end on Jan. 1.

The term of County Surveyor J. H. Sweetman does not expire until Jan. 1, 1933.

The next general election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1930. The primaries will be held on Tuesday, August 12. The last day for filing declarations for candidacy of June 13.

Getting Clearer Visions of Duty

The world is full of distrust, prejudices, jealousies, disappointments ,discouragements; so long as we are immersed in them, we cannot see clearly. The church is a place for quiet meditation where the atmosphere and spirit beget trust, confidences, courage, hope, kindness and patience so that we can begin to see things in their propert relations.

The man that goes to church and heeds its teachings and holy influences will have juster views and clearer guidance. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Preparing To Do The Impossible

Ferdinand de Lesseps. after spending $250,000 in an attempt to consruct the Panama Canal, gave it up as an impossible task; but it was constructed later by one who paid the price for doing the impossible when a lad and young man.

George Washington Goethals, son of poor parents in Brooklyn, N. Y., attended public school during the day and after school worked in a New York market to provide for financial needs of the home. He was never sorry for himself, realizing this work was necessary because his parents needed the money and because he needed an education.

He continued thus to work at night, doing anything he could find to do, finally completing a college course in engineering. He was such a leader in his college life that his ability was discovered by Presidents Taft and Roosevtl. He accompanied President Taft to Panama on a visit and gave such evidence of his fitness to build the canal. that he was given full charge of such a program as he deemed wise.

Not only was Mr. Goethals, a skilled engineer, but he was a brother leader of the needed 40,000 to whom he modestly gives the credit of finishing the task in seven years. Doing the hard thing of helpin gcare for his parents when a lad and at the same time securing a finished education, prepared him to cut a channel that connects the world's greatest oceans.

Its purpose is to promote worship, religious education and community service, doing away with what is merely customary and aiming to meet the vital needs of the community. It will be known as "The Church in Redburn — A Christian Cooperative Movement."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Standards of the Kingdom. Matt 5:3-48 for Sunday, January 26

Following a night of solitary prayer, our Lord made formal choice of his 12 disciples, and then addressed them and a multitude that followed, presenting the ideals and standards of the true religion of God which are to control the lives of his subjects.

V. 3—"Blessed are the poor in spirit; for their is the kindgdom of heaven." Blessed means happy in a spiritual sense. "Poor in spirit" is self-renunciation.

V. 4—"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." To mourn here means a grief of soul in the consciousness of sin and a sense o fself-condemnation before the eye of God.

V. 5—"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Meekness is the opposite of sudden anger, malice, long-harbored vengeance; it is patience in the reception of injuries.

V. 6—"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." An ardent desire for anything is to thirst and hunger. The most worthy desire is to be right with God and man.

V. 7—"Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." To be merciful is to be affected by the sufferings of others so as to desire to relieve them. Like produces like. God is merciful and this quality is found in his children.

V. 8—"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." To be pure in heart is to be pure in mind, motive, desire and principles—an experience wrought by the Holy Spirit.

V. 9—"Blessed are the peace makers; for they shall be called the children of God. God hates war and strife and so loves peace, and owns such as do their best to produce peace among men.

Vs. 17, 19—"Think not that I am come to destroy the law and the prohpets; I am come not to destroy but to fulfill. Christ put a new spirit into the old law so that the Old Testament is fulfilled by the deeds and works of Christ. The crux of the Old Testament is obedience to God which does not allow failure in the least.

V. 20—"For I say unto you, except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in nowise enter into the kingdom of God.' ' The righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees was shallow consisting of formal details of ceremonial religion; Christ's righteousness was of the inner life based on the indwelling of God in men's hearts.

Vs. 43-44—"Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy, but I say unto you, Love your enemies and pray for them that persecute you." This is the climax of Christ's teachings, possible only when God's love reigns in the heart. To pray for our enemies is a good religious exercise, for we cannot hate a man when we really pray for him.

V. 48—"Ye therefore shall be perfect as your heavenly father is perfect." Good's love is perfect, and just in the measure that his love abounds in man is he perfect.

A man should have no friends of whom he is not proud.

The mind must be used or it will wither; thotlessness will lead to inability to think.

If we set out to make a better world, the attempt will make a world of difference in ourselves.

Bridging the gap between the good intention and the act requires real spiritual engineering.

Getting Clearer Visions of Duty

The world is full of distrust, prejudices, jealousies, disappointments ,discouragements; so long as we are immersed in them, we cannot se clearly. The church is a place for quiet meditation where the atmosphere and spirit beget trust, confidences, courage, hope, kindness and patience so that we can begin to see things in their propert relations.

The man that goes to church and heeds its teachings and holy influences will have juster views and clearer guidance. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Preparing To Do The Impossible

Ferdinand de Lesseps, after spending $250,000 in an attempt to consruct the Panama Canal, gave it up as an impossible task; but it was constructed later by one who paid the price for doing the impossible when a lad and young man.

George Washington Goethals, son of poor parents in Brooklyn, N. Y., attended public school during the day and after school worked in a New York market to provide for financial needs of the home. He was never sorry for himself, realizing this work was necessary because his parents needed the money and because he needed an education.

He continued thus to work at night, doing anything he could find to do, finally completing a college course in engineering. He was such a leader in his college life that his ability was discovered by Presidents Taft and Roosevtl. He accompanied President Taft to Panama on a visit and gave such evidence of his fitness to build the canal, that he was given full charge of such a program as he deemed wise.

Not only was Mr. Goethals, a skilled engineer, but he was a brother leader of the needed 40,000 to whom he modestly gives the credit of finishing the task in seven years. Doing the hard thing of helpin gcare for his parents when a lad and at the same time securing a finished education, prepared him to cut a channel that connects the world's greatest oceans.

Standards of the Kingdom. Matt 5:3-48 for Sunday, January 26

Following a night of solitary prayer, our Lord made formal choice of his 12 disciples, and then addressed them and a multitude that followed, presenting the ideals and standards of the true religion of God which are to control the lives of his subjects.

V. 3—"Blessed are the poor in spirit; for their is the kindgdom of heaven." Blessed means happy in a spiritual sense. "Poor in spirit" is self-renunciation.

V. 4—"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." To mourn here means a grief of soul in the consciousness of sin and a sense o fself-condemnation before the eye of God.

V. 5—"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Meekness is the opposite of sudden anger, malice, long-harbored vengeance; it is patience in the reception of injuries.

V. 6—"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." An ardent desire for anything is to thirst and hunger. The most worthy desire is to be right with God and man.

V. 7—"Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." To be merciful is to be affected by the sufferings of others so as to desire to relieve them. Like produces like. God is merciful and this quality is found in his children.

V. 8—"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." To be pure in heart is to be pure in mind, motive, desire and principles—an experience wrought by the Holy Spirit.

V. 9—"Blessed are the peace makers; for they shall be called the children of God. God hates war and strife and so loves peace, and owns such as do their best to produce peace among men.

Vs. 17, 19—"Think not that I am come to destroy the law and the prohpets; I am come not to destroy but to fulfill. Christ put a new spirit into the old law so that the Old Testament is fulfilled by the deeds and works of Christ. The crux of the Old Testament is obedience to God which does not allow failure in the least.

V. 20—"For I say unto you, except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in nowise enter into the kingdom of God.' ' The righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees was shallow consisting of formal details of ceremonial religion; Christ's righteousness was of the inner life based on the indwelling of God in men's hearts.

Vs. 43-44)—"Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy, but I say unto you, Love your enemies and pray for them that persecute you." This is the climax of Christ's teachings, possible only when God's love reigns in the heart. To pray for our enemies is a good religious exercise, for we cannot hate a man when we really pray for him.

V. 48—"Ye therefore shall be perfect as your heavenly father is perfect." Good's love is perfect, and just in the measure that his love abounds in man is he perfect.

A man should have no friends of whom he is not proud.

The mind must be used or it will wither; thotlessness will lead to inability to think.

If we set out to make a better world, the attempt will make a world of difference in ourselves.

Bridging the gap between the good intention and the act requires real spiritual engineering.

Tigers Play Poor Game, Lose in New Loop

MEDIOCRE GRANDVIEW QUINT TURNS TRICK, SCORE 25-19

Playing basketball as though they were in a trance, the Circleville high school Tigers went down to defeat at the hands of a mediocre Grandview team Friday in the local gym. The score was 25 to 19 and had the Tiger played even one half as good a game as they did against Granville Tuesday tney could have won the contest by 25 points.

Those few fans who were fortunate enough to see the Red and Black at Granville would have made a bet the team that played that night was not the team they saw in action Friday.

Had the Tigers made even a fair percentage of their shots in the first period they would have been so far ahead Grandview would never have reached them, but although the ball would lay on the edge of the hoop, threaten to drop through the net and roll around a little bit, it would than drop off and always on the wrong side of the hop.

There is just one thing to say; the Tigers weren't on.

MISS SHOTS

The game started as games usually do with the ball flying around first in the hands of one player then another. In the first two minutes the Tigers had several shots which hit and rolled off the bank-board. Grandview scored first when Sargent broke loose under the net. They scored another goal and still another before the Tigers hit. White followed a shot for a goal. Recob shot two free throws, and Nickerson hit for two goals before the period ended.

The score was 8 to 6 in favor of Grandview.

The Tigers went ahead in the second session when they hit two shots and missed 10 times that many. Recob's free throw was the only point Grandview could get in the session.

The third quarter was the end of Eddie Clark on personal fouls although the last two called against him were exceedingly questionable. One was for charging and the other was for fighting for the ball after the whistle had blown. Pete Stout replaced him.

TIE CONTEST

The going was hotter than ever Grandview hopped ahead on shots by Ulrich and Recob and while Russell, Davis and Clark before he left the game contributed to the scoring. The third session ended with the scored tied 15-all.

The fourth period was hotter than ever with Grandview winning the game in the last three minutes when Sargent, Ulrich and Recob broke loose for shots. Recob scored a basket and three fouls in this session.

Jaggy Davis was high point man for the Guthrie-coached lads with eight counters. He hit for three goals and two free throws.

Ulrich with the same number of points, Recob with the same but virtue of one goal and six fouls, and Sargent with three action buckets led the Grandview scoring.

Next Friday the Bexley high school tossers will play here.

Vic Kolb, of Ohio Wesleyan, refereed the game.

IN MEMORIAM

Sunday, Jan. 26, 1930, marks the fourth anniversary of the death of of Father James M. Kirwin. Father Kirwin was born in Circleville, Ohio, July 1st, 1872, and died at Galveston, Texas, Jan. 26th 1926. His mother Mrs. Mary Kirwin, now in her 91st year, resides at 811 S. Scioto-st, this city.

Father Kirwin's ministry as a Catholic priest was spent in the city of Galveston, where Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, white and colored, rich and poor united to honor and love him. From the hundreds of tributes paid him on the occasion of his death we select the following apprecation of the Negro Ministerial Alliance of the city of Galveston.

"The negro ministry of the city joins the thousands of citizens whose hearts are touched by the sudden passing of Rt. Rev. Monsignor James M. Kirwin. We are not resorting to the vocabulary of flattery when we say that Monsignor Kirwin was one of the truest friends the negroes of Galveston ever had.

Monsignor Kirwin was, above everything else, a predominant personality. His 30 years of activity was almost without a parallel. A few have equaled him as a preacher, but not one has sent forth such streams of influence into so many different channels of a great city's life as this man for whom the chariots of God have lately swung low. We say the many sidedness of his ministry is unparalleled in our city. As a matter of fact many of us do well in our desire aid determination to do one thing, but it is a source of joy now and then to have a man walk our human ways. and, through th teeming wealth of his nature. have the very soil of his soul like the earth in spring-time. heave and stir with many kinds of mental and spiritual fruits and flowers.

"All classes and conditions of humanity found this minister and minstrel the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. Rich and poor, educated and uneducated, capitalist and laborer, young and old, black and white—he was to all as streams of water in a dry place.

"He was a genuine Democrat, uniting the highest culture with the widest human sympathies.

"Monsignor Kirwin has left his imprint upon the heart of all Galvestonians. He truly served his age and generation, for he indeed lived by the side of the road and was a friend to man.

Full soon o'er God's Acre the robins will sing
At birth of the lawn-light athrob with the spring:
Their notes will be sweeter than ever next June,
When near your own grave they learn secrets of tune:
The Meadow Larks' wings, when the wild flowers unfold,
Will flutter above you with music untold.

Oh, big man with the child's heart, gold-tongued robins and meadow larks will sing all the sweeter because they warble above your own God's Acre—'next June.'

Rev. R. C. Barbour."

President Galveston Negro Ministerial Alliance.

WALNUT GIRLS HELD EVEN BY MUHLENBERG SEXTET

Muhlenberg-twp's high school girls gave the Walnut-twp girls their hardest contest of this season Friday evening at Walnut and at the end of playing time score was tied 13-all. Since there is a rule in girls' games that a tie game ends a tie game no winner could be determined.

The game was sensational from the start with neither team holding much of a lead at any time.

Muhlenberg boys came through to defeat the Walnut boys by a 28-17 score. Ivan Davis, former Circleville high school coach, refereed the games.

Monroe and Williamsport split their double bill at Williamsport Friday evening with Monroe girls defeating Williamsport girls and Williamsport boys turning the trick on Monroe.

The score of the girls game was 18-15 and the boys 22-15.

Dwight Steele, Circleville, refereed.

Ashville's boys gained a hard fought victory over Saltcreek Friday evening at Ashville in a fast contest. The game was fast from the start and although Ashville led nearly all the way their margin was never great. The Ashville girls also copped victory defeating Saltcreek 26-10. Hax, Capitol U., refereed.

New Holland defeated Jacksontwp in both ends of their double bill, the boys winning by a 26-13 score and the girls, 18-11.

Mace and Kaler were hot for New Holland boys and Thacher and Radcliffe did well for Jackson. Arnold was the star of the New Holland girls team.

Scioto came through with two victories in their Friday night tilts at the expense of Darby. The girls won 16-10 and the boys, 47-14. Stevens of Columbus, refereed.

Pickaway played non-league games Friday evening traveling to Kingston to lose two great basket ball games.

The Kingston girls defeat Pickaway by a 17-16 score when a free throw by Kate Smith for Kingston in the last second of play decided the issue.

The boys lost by a 22-21 count. Bookwalter scored a fielder for Kingston at the fag end to take the verdict. Enoch and Paxton were high scorers for Pickaway.

GIRLS PLAY FINE BALL TO DEFEAT GRANDVIEW, 29-28

Any girls' basketball team that is good enough to defeat the Bliss College girls by a 29-9 score should be good enough to defeat Circleville hig school girl's varsity But such is not the case and in another sensational basketball game Friday evening the local girls copped a 29-28 victory from Grandview.

The game was fast from the start. Both teams started scoring fast and the score at the end of the first period was 9 to 5. Very few shots went astray of the net in this fray.

The second was just as fast as the first one with the result that Circleville led at halftime by a score of 17-13. Eldridge and Fitzpatrick divided the scoring almost evenly in the first half. Eldridge getting four goals and Fitzpatrick, four goals and a free throw.

Circleville again led at the end of the third quarter by their usual four point margin. The score was 26-22.

And then came the final period in which both teams played as fast and as hard as they possibly could. First one team would have the ball, then the other. Grandview outscored the locals in this session but their last minute rally which might have won the game, fell short by just one point.

Every girl who took part in the game did well. Grandview had a mighty keen basketball team and only super girls' basketball could possibly defeat them. That's just what the Red and Black clad girls did, play super basketball and as a result they won their third basketball game with no defeats.

Fitzpatrick was high scorer with 17 counters. Miss Eldridge scored six goals for 12 points.

If you are planning a Public Sale, one of the first things you think of is the Auctioneer, then you must list the items and advertise the sale. When you consider the advertising one question that arises is the cost...this is only natural.

There are several methods of advertising your Public Sale. One way is by Sale Bills, another by Newspapers, or both. The cost of the Sale Bills depends on the quality of the work. The cost of the newspaper advertising depends upon the circulation and quality of the newspapers used.

The success of your sale depends upon the number of bidders that your advertising brings to the sale. The largest numbers of bidders in Pickaway County can be reached by advertising in the HERALD (Daily) and the UNION-HERALD (weekly). These papers with a combined circulation of over 5400 cover the County thoroughly for you and the cost of this thorough coverage is much less, in proportion, to the cost of spotty circulation in other mediums.

Tigers Play Poor Game, Lose in New Loop

MEDIOCRE GRANDVIEW QUINT TURNS TRICK, SCORE 25-19

Playing basketball as though they were in a trance, the Circleville high school Tigers went down to defeat at the hands of a mediocre Grandview team Friday in the local gym. The score was 25 to 19 and had the Tiger played even one half as good a game as they did against Granville Tuesday they could have won the contest by 25 points.

Those few fans who were fortunate enough to see the Red and Black at Granville would have made a bet the team that played that night was not the team they saw in action Friday.

Had the Tigers made even a fair percentage of their shots in the first period they would have been so far ahead Grandview would never have reached them, but although the ball would lay on the edge of the hoop, threaten to drop through the net and roll around a little bit, it would than drop off and always on the wrong side of the hop.

There is just one thing to say; the Tigers weren't on.

MISS SHOTS

The game started as games usually do with the ball flying around first in the hands of one player then another. In the first two minutes the Tigers had several shots which hit and rolled off the bank-board. Grandview scored first when Sargent broke loose under the net. They scored another goal and still another before the Tigers hit. White followed a shot for a goal. Recob shot two free throws, and Nickerson hit for two goals before the period ended.

The score was 8 to 6 in favor of Grandview.

The Tigers went ahead in the second session when they hit two shots and missed 10 times that many. Recob's free throw was the only point Grandview could get in the session.

The third quarter was the end of Eddie Clark on personal fouls although the last two called against him were exceedingly questionable. One was for charging and the other was for fighting for the ball after the whistle had blown. Pete Stout replaced him.

TIE CONTEST

The going was hotter than ever Grandview hopped ahead on shots by Ulrich and Recob and while Russell, Davis and Clark before he left the game contributed to the scoring. The third session ended with the scored tied 15-all.

The fourth period was hotter than ever with Grandview winning the game in the last three minutes when Sargent, Ulrich and Recob broke loose for shots. Recob scored a basket and three fouls in this session.

Jaggy Davis was high point man for the Guthrie-coached lads with eight counters. He hit for three goals and two free throws.

Ulrich with the same number of points, Recob with the same but virtue of one goal and six fouls, and Sargent with three action buckets led the Grandview scoring.

Next Friday the Bexley high school tossers will play here.

Vic Kolb, of Ohio Wesleyan, refereed the game.

IN MEMORIAM

Sunday, Jan. 26, 1930, marks the fourth anniversary of the death of of Father James M. Kirwin. Father Kirwin was born in Circleville, Ohio, July 1st, 1872, and died at Galveston, Texas, Jan. 26th 1926. His mother Mrs. Mary Kirwin, now in her 91st year, resides at 811 S. Scioto-st, this city.

Father Kirwin's ministry as a Catholic priest was spent in the city of Galveston, where Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, white and colored, rich and poor united to honor and love him. From the hundreds of tributes paid him on the occasion of his death we select the following appreciation of the Negro Ministerial Alliance of the city of Galveston.

"The negro ministry of the city joins the thousands of citizens whose hearts are touched by the sudden passing of Rt. Rev. Monsignor James M. Kirwin. We are not resorting to the vocabulary of flattery when we say that Monsignor Kirwin was one of the truest friends the negroes of Galveston ever had.

Monsignor Kirwin was, above everything else, a predominant personality. His 30 years of activity was almost without a parallel. A few have equaled him as a preacher, but not one has sent forth such streams of influence into so many different channels of a great city's life as this man for whom the chariots of God have lately swung low. We say the many sidedness of his ministry is unparalleled in our city. As a matter of fact many of us do well in our desire aid determination to do one thing, but it is a source of joy now and then to have a man walk our human ways, and, through th teeming wealth of his nature, have the very soil of his soul like the earth in spring-time, heave and stir with many kinds of mental and spiritual fruits and flowers.

"All classes and conditions of humanity found this minister and minstrel the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. Rich and poor, educated and uneducated, capitalist and laborer, young and old, black and white—he was to all as streams of water in a dry place.

"He was a genuine Democrat, uniting the highest culture with the widest human sympathies.

"Monsignor Kirwin has left his imprint upon the heart of all Galvestonians. He truly served his age and generation, for he indeed lived by the side of the road and was a friend to man.

Full soon o'er God's Acre the robins will sing
At birth of the lawn-light athrob with the spring:
Their notes will be sweeter than ever next June,
When near your own grave they learn secrets of tune;
The Meadow Larks' wings, when the wild flowers unfold,
Will flutter above you with music untold.

Oh, big man with the child's heart, gold-tongued robins and meadow larks will sing all the sweeter because they warble above your own God's Acre—'next June.'

Rev. R. C. Barbour."

President Galveston Negro Ministerial Alliance.

Grant's Flying Clouds lost a fast contest at Groveport Friday evening by the score of 18-16.

A first half lead which Groveport was able to get when Wetherington, forward, scored three buckets.

In the last half the Grants got going and although they outscored their opponents and also outplayed them, they couldn't forge ahead.

The Grant scoring was evenly divided.

WALNUT GIRLS HELD EVEN BY MUHLENBERG SEXTET

Muhlenberg-twp's high school girls gave the Walnut-twp girls their hardest contest of this season Friday evening at Walnut and at the end of playing time score was tied 13-all. Since there is a rule in girls' games that a tie game ends a tie game no winner could be determined.

The game was sensational from the start with neither team holding much of a lead at any time.

Muhlenberg boys came through to defeat the Walnut boys by a 28-17 score. Ivan Davis, former Circleville high school coach, refereed the games.

Monroe and Williamsport split their double bill at Williamsport Friday evening with Monroe girls defeating Williamsport girls and Williamsport boys turning the trick on Monroe.

The score of the girls game was 18-15 and the boys 22-15.

Dwight Steele, Circleville, refereed.

Ashville's boys gained a hard fought victory over Saltcreek Friday evening at Ashville in a fast contest. The game was fast from the start and although Ashville led nearly all the way their margin was never great. The Ashville girls also copped victory defeating Saltcreek 26-10. Hax, Capitol U., refereed.

New Holland defeated Jacksontwp in both ends of their double bill, the boys winning by a 26-13 score and the girls, 18-11.

Mace and Kaler were hot for New Holland boys and Thacher and Radcliffe did well for Jackson. Arnold was the star of the New Holland girls team.

Scioto came through with two victories in their Friday night tilts at the expense of Darby. The girls won 16-10 and the boys, 47-14. Stevens of Columbus, refereed.

Pickaway played non-league games Friday evening traveling to Kingston to lose two great basket ball games.

The Kingston girls defeat Pickaway by a 17-16 score when a free throw by Kate Smith for Kingston in the last second of play decided the issue.

The boys lost by a 22-21 count. Bookwalter scored a fielder for Kingston at the fag end to take the verdict. Enoch and Paxton were high scorers for Pickaway.

GIRLS PLAY FINE BALL TO DEFEAT GRANDVIEW, 29-28

Any girls' basketball team that is good enough to defeat the Bliss College girls by a 29-9 score should be good enough to defeat Circleville hig school girl's varsity. But such is not the case and in another sensational basketball game Friday evening the local girls copped a 29-28 victory from Grandview.

The game was fast from the start. Both teams started scoring fast and the score at the end of the first period was 9 to 5. Very few shots went astray of the net in this fray.

The second was just as fast as the first one with the result that Circleville led at halftime by a score of 17-13. Eldridge and Fitzpatrick divided the scoring almost evenly in the first half, Eldridge getting four goals and Fitzpatrick, four goals and a free throw.

Circleville again led at the end of the third quarter by their usual four point margin. The score was 26-22.

And then came the final period in which both teams played as fast and as hard as they possibly could. First one team would have the ball, then the other. Grandview outscored the locals in this session but their last minute rally which might have won the game, fell short by just one point.

Every girl who took part in the game did well. Grandview had a mighty keen basketball team and only super girls' basketball could possibly defeat them. That's just what the Red and Black clad girls did, play super basketball, and as a result they won their third basketball game with no defeats.

Fitzpatrick was high scorer with 17 counters. Miss Eldridge scored six goals for 12 points.

TWO BIG WATERWAYS

There seems to be a good deal of antagonism between advocates of the St. Lawrence deep waterway and advocates of the Mississippi waterway, as if these were rival projects, and any help given to one would hurt the other. This is an unnecessary and foolish attitude for either group of boosters.

The whole country is pretty well agreed as to the merits of internal waterways and the advantages of giving the rich and populous interior of the continent water outlets to the sea.

It happens that the Great Lakes possess the greatest fresh water traffic found anywhere in the world. The St. Lawrence river, in the view of most Americans and Canadians, offers the most feasible outlet from the lakes eastward to the Atlantic.

It happens that the Mississippi, which once floated a large commerce, and has lost most of it through railroad competition, still offers with its tributary streams a far-reaching waterway system of great value.

It is also mere comon sense to develop both systems, because each has its special field and merits, and the country eventually can make good use of both.

It is also mere common sense to combine the two, making one vast system. This is evidently the policy of President Hoover, who necessarily views the problem from a national rather than sectional standpoint. The two sectional groups might profitably take the same view, pooling their influence instead of hindering each other.

Unfortunately bitterness has been created by Chicago's water diversion from the Great Lakes, and the quarrel has crept into waterway discussion. This obstacle to co-operation is unreal. Chicago's sanitary problems and the country's transportation problems are two different things. Chicago is now building a sanitary system to take care of her sewage as other lake cities do, and according to army engineers the amount of water required for navigation from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi need not lower lake levels at all.

TWO VIEWS OF ARMAMENT

For the present, the arms conference at London seems lost in a maze of figures, swamped by statistics, deluged by words.

The elaborate calculations of naval experts are probably necessary, but the public has little interest in them. It does not follow the detailed estimates and comparisons of tonnage, gun-bore, range, weight of projectile-metal, armor, etc. It sees the human rather than the material factors.

War offensives start in human hearts. There is a feeling among the people at home that the defense of a nation also starts in human hearts, that the best defensive weapon in the world is good will, and that diplomats in their negotiations have never yet realized the full value of this weapon.

Isn't it time somebody started relief work for unemployed lobbyists?

Turning so many farms into real estate allotments helps the farm situation, but doesn't do the real estate market much good.

More British justice—a London court decides that the Booth family doesn't own the Salvation Army.

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THREE wretched, miserable days of feeling so sick and faint and weary! Would they never end? She dreaded their ending. How would she meet Ned? On the other hand, she longed for them to be ended and for Ned to know. And was there another reason, down deep under her heart, for the longing? But if only such a thing as she hoped had come to her had been right! Oh, if she had only talked to Dick about it! But she was shy, and it might have worried him.

Chicago. Ned rushing forward to meet her and holding her arm tightly as they walked to the taxicab, telling her how he had missed her and asking what she had been doing and how were Pauline and Dave and old Dick and when was the old scout coming east? He never mentioned Ivor Drake.

She'd tell him at lunch—when she was refreshed by her bath and change of clothes after the three dusty days. She was so tired, and she felt a strange weakness and on the train something she had never experienced—train sickness—or it might be . . . ?

"You're not eating your lunch, dear," said Ned as they sat in the cool dining-room of the Blackstone overlooking the lake.

"I'm not very hungry," replied Enid. She must say something.

The time passed. Ned was asking for the check. Too late. She'd have to tell him on the train.

Settled on the train, Ned handed her several magazines, then opened his bag and took out some business papers.

They read. Occasionally Ned looked up, smiled into Enid's face and patted her knee or pressed her hand for a moment. He only knew what a poor, contemptible, weak creature she was—she, Enid Grier! Her mother . . . her grandmother . . . all the splendid women in her family. . . .

She felt dizzy and queer. She'd lie down on the sofa in their drawing room. Perhaps that would make her feel better. She might even sleep. Then she would be calmer to talk to Ned.

She closed her eyes, to shut out the vision of Ned sitting there across the table from her.

Then suddenly her mind became very clear. She counted: July—August—this was September.

Under her heart she carried Dick's child.

She—Enid—a baby—Oh God, how wonderful! Her prayers had been answered . . . a baby—a little baby of her own—to hold against her breast, feel its little fingers clasp—to trim a bassinet—to count the little dresses and first coats—for it was boy—Dick had said—animals do well—in her heart—her baby—hers and Dick's. Her face lighted with tenderness and then began to burn with shame—Dick loved . . .

But . . . he didn't know that. It would be natural to think of others now—with the baby coming. If it were born after they were married, Ned would think—but no—he would know. No, he wouldn't, but . . .

"I think that would be best," Enid managed to answer. "He's so funny about a lot of things—wanting to go to the club or his . . ."

Dick did not come to the station when he arrived in New York, but telephoned the moment he reached his hotel. Enid, knowing the day he was expected to arrive, had not left the house for a minute—she couldn't.

With every ring of the telephone she had jumped, hastening to answer it before her maid. And how fidgety she was when one of her friends would get on the wire and spend five minutes telling her what "so and so" had on last night and who else were there. Why—Dick might be trying to get her at that moment. What would she do when she finally heard his voice?

At last it came—that deep "Enid" with such a ring of gentleness to it that her voice caught in her throat as she answered:

"Can you come up to see me now, Dick?"

It was four o'clock. Ned wouldn't be home until six. She could tell Dick everything, and he would know what to do. He always knew what to do.

"Yes, I'll be up in half an hour."

Half an hour. She rushed to her room, stripped off her negligee and prepared to put on the lovely tea-gown which she had planned to wear when she saw him. It was blue. He had told her he liked her in blue—that the color made her eyes look bluer.

The telephone ringing again—some one to bother her. She'd let Anna answer it. She lifted her tea-gown carefully from the bed and started to put one arm through it.

"Mrs. Grier," Anna was hurrying down the hall. Her voice sounded strange. Why was she so white?

"Mrs. Grier—" she couldn't seem to go on.

"What is it, Anna. What is it?"

"Your mother has just been taken very ill—she's in great pain. They've sent for the doctor and want you to come at once."

Mummy—Mummy ill. Why, Enid had been there only the night before and Mummy was splendid. She was going today, but she couldn't leave the house—Dick—

"Get me a taxi," Enid gasped. She threw her tea-gown down in a heap on the floor and took the first dress in her closet. Anna handed her her bag, and pulling her hat down over her head Enid ran to the door.

The moment Enid stepped in her mother's house she felt, throughout the whole house, as a strange presence pervaded it. What was it—forbidding—sinister—very close?

Enid rushed upstairs to find the doctor bending over her mother. She turned her eyes to Enid and reached out her hand feebly.

"Such terrible pain, Enid!"

Two days of anguish followed. Nurses . . . hypodermics . . . the telephone continually ringing . . . kind friends . . . Endless nights. Would the operation take hold? Yes, Mummy was resting at last.

Another cruel attack . . . Mummy trying to bravely so brave and patient . . . brutal needles in her arm.

"Sleep now, Mrs. Grier . . . you are all worn out." . . . urged her . . . if there is a change.

Sleep—sleep—To herself Enid cried: "My . . . mustn't go and leave you so just now. I . . . everything. Oh, I . . . you're thinking of . . . so kind and thoughtful."

Then Mummy . . . quietly and peacefully, without pain. She just went to sleep with her hand on Enid's head as she knelt by her. Oh, Mummy—Mummy—oh—Had God taken her away so that she would never know—was God punishing Enid for her sin? Dear God, forgive me—I loved him so.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

A story of years of preparation lies behind "Condemned" the new Ronald Colman starring picture which Samuel Goldwyn brings to the Cliftona Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. At least three of the people concerned with its production—Mr. Goldwyn himself—Mrs. Blair Niles, author of "Condemned! to Devil's Island," the book from which it was adapted and Wesley Ruggles, director of the picture—had at different times become attracted to the picture sequences and drama of the famous French penal colonies off the South American coast and determined to use them for these unique values, long before "Condemned!" ever came into actual being.

The group of prisons known as "Devil's Island," where incorrigible French convicts are sent to what is the equivalent of living death, hemmed in on all sides by shark-infested seas and fevered jungles, have been famous the world-over ever since Captain Alfred Dreyfus, the center of the great French scandal thirty years ago, was confined there. They came again into world-wide notice some time ago when Eddie Guerin, noted international criminal, escaped from the island, the first man ever to get away alive from the perils of the swamps and jungles.

Three years ago, Mr. Goldwyn became interested in the dramatic aspects of this grim prison colony and planned to utilize it as the setting for a master romance in picture form. At about the same time, Blair Niles, the woman journalist whose studies of conditions and peoples have made her one of the best known figures in literature, was planning a six months' stay on Devil's Island for the purpose of writing a book about it.

She obtained permission from the French government to make this visit, permission which had never been granted before to any writer or investigator and found that conditions were even more startling than she had been led to believe.

SATURDAY

Nature and the film makeup man's magic conspired to produce as grotesquely ugly, malevolent and threatening a group of individuals as could be imagined for some of the scenes in "The Isle of Lost Ships."

This big First National production, dealing with shipwreck in the Sargasso Sea, refuge on a floating island of derelict ships, and battle with the formidable colony there, is at the Cliftona Theatre Saturday.

AT THE GRAND

Mary Duncan with Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe are at the Grand Theatre in "Thru Different Eyes" Sunday and Monday.

Harvey Manning was either guilty or innocent of the slaying of his best friend. Was he ignorant of his wife's notorious amours until that fatal night? Or was he driven by the unwritten law to fire the murderous shots?

Two Collegians in "Cross Country Run" and Universal Talking News are also listed.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

INCORRECT CARRIAGE RESTRICTS THE BODY

Bad Posture Quickly Becomes a Habit, Interfering with the Natural Functions of Vital Organs, Says Authority, Urging Upright Position.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN making up a list of what should be done to maintain perfect health, it is easy to overlook many vital things. For instance, posture is a most important matter for health. Correct posture in walking, standing and sitting and correct breathing, are necessary for sound bodies.

DR. COPELAND.

Did you ever notice that healthy persons naturally assume an erect attitude? Those who are not well are likely to move and work in a relaxed position.

There are, too, many people, sad to say, who go about, all unthinkingly, with a slouchy, faulty posture. They do not seem to realize that an habitually bad posture may become a habit, and a habit which may lead to poor health.

It wasn't so long ago that it was considered bad manners to sit in any way but a "bolt upright" position. In that position stomach and bowels and all the organs are kept in the right place. You are able to breathe properly. In such a position the weight of the stomach assists the automatic movements of the bowel, so that free excretion results.

When you sit or stand in a correct, upright position your chest is thrown forward free and unrestrained, you are able to fill your lungs with air and to breathe deeply. What is the result? The blood is made to circulate more quickly, stimulating the whole body. You feel more physical vigor, the digestive organs are stimulated to better work.

Perhaps never before in America has so much attention been paid to good posture in children as now. Of course, many of our boys in military schools have had the advantage of training in good posture. It is only recently that girls have received as part of their education serious physical training.

Today our public and private schools have their gymnasiums, where the youth of America learns to stand correctly, where poise and good judgment are taught in athletic games. Health is the first consideration in all these supervised pursuits.

We have the Boy and Girl Scout movement, where boys and girls are taught to stand correctly, and the out-of-doors is part and parcel of their lives. Business men take time to go to the gymnasium to keep fit. It is our fault if we do not acquire the right posture.

Are you giving proper attention to everyday exercise and good posture? We all want good health. We should go systematically about getting it. An erect, graceful carriage is an asset anywhere.

TWO BIG WATERWAYS

There seems to be a good deal of antagonism between advocates of the St. Lawrence deep waterway and advocates of the Mississippi waterway, as if these were rival projects, and any help given to one would hurt the other. This is an unnecessary and foolish attitude for either group of boosters.

The whole country is pretty well agreed as to the merits of internal waterways and the advantages of giving the rich and populous interior of the continent water outlets to the sea.

It happens that the Great Lakes possess the greatest fresh water traffic found anywhere in the world. The St. Lawrence river, in the view of most Americans and Canadians, offers the most feasible outlet from the lakes eastward to the Atlantic.

It happens that the Mississippi, which once floated a large commerce, and has lost most of it through railroad competition, still offers with its tributary streams a far-reaching waterway system of great value.

It is also mere comon sense to develop both systems, because each has its special field and merits, and the country eventually can make good use of both.

It is also mere common sense to combine the two, making one vast system. This is evidently the policy of President Hoover, who necessarily views the problem from a national rather than sectional standpoint. The two sectional groups might profitably take the same view, pooling their influence instead of hindering each other.

Unfortunately bitterness has been created by Chicago's water diversion from the Great Lakes, and the quarrel has crept into waterway discussion. This obstacle to co-operation is unreal. Chicago's sanitary problems and the country's transportation problems are two different things. Chicago is now building a sanitary system to take care of her sewage as other lake cities do, and according to army engineers the amount of water required for navigation from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi need not lower lake levels at all.

TWO VIEWS OF ARMAMENT

For the present, the arms conference at London seems lost in a maze of figures, swamped by statistics, deluged by words.

The elaborate calculations of naval experts are probably necessary, but the public has little interest in them. It does not follow the detailed estimates and comparisons of tonnage, gun-bore, range, weight of projectile-metal, armor, etc. It sees the human rather than the material factors.

War offensives start in human hearts. There is a feeling among the people at home that the defense of a nation also starts in human hearts, that the best defensive weapon in the world is good will, and that diplomats in their negotiations have never yet realized the full value of this weapon.

Isn't it time somebody started relief work for unemployed lobbyists?

Turning so many farms into real estate allotments helps the farm situation, but doesn't do the real estate market much good.

More British justice—a London court decides that the Booth family doesn't own the Salvation Army.

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THREE wretched, miserable days of feeling so sick and faint and weary! Would they never end? She dreaded their ending. How would she meet Ned? On the other hand, she longed for them to be ended and for Ned to know. And was there another reason, down deep under her heart, for the longing? But if only such a thing as she hoped had come to her had been right! Oh, if she had only talked to Dick about it! But she was shy, and it might have worried him.

Chicago. Ned rushing forward to meet her and holding her arm tightly as they walked to the taxicab, telling her how he had missed her and asking what she had been doing and how were Pauline and Dave and old Dick and when was the old scout coming east? He never mentioned Ivor Drake.

She'd tell him at lunch—when she was refreshed by her bath and change of clothes after the three dusty days. She was so tired, and she felt a strange weakness and on the train something she had never experienced—train sickness—or it might be . . . ?

"You're not eating your lunch, dear," said Ned as they sat in the cool dining-room of the Blackstone overlooking the lake.

"I'm not very hungry," replied Enid. She must say something.

The time passed. Ned was asking for the check. Too late. She'd have to tell him on the train.

Settled on the train, Ned handed her several magazines, then opened his bag and took out some business papers.

They read. Occasionally Ned looked up, smiled into Enid's face and patted her knee or pressed her hand for a moment. How only knew what a poor, contemptible, weak creature she was—she, Enid Grier! Her mother . . . her grandmother . . . all the splendid women in her family. . . .

She felt dizzy and queer. She'd lie down on the sofa in their drawing room. Perhaps that would make her feel better. She might even sleep. Then she would be calmer to talk to Ned.

She closed her eyes, to shut out the vision of Ned sitting there across the little aisle from her.

Then suddenly her mind became very clear. She counted: July—August—this was September.

Under her heart she carried Dick's child.

She—Enid—a baby—Oh God, how wonderful! Her prayers had been answered . . . a baby—a little baby—her own—to hold against her breast and feel its little fingers clasp her—to trim a bassinet—and count the little dresses and petticoats before it was born—like she had seen the girls do, with an ache in her heart—her baby—hers—hers and Dick's. Her face flushed with shame and then her heart began to beat so fast—Dick—her beloved . . .

But she couldn't think straight. It would be the most horrible scandal to think of divorce now—with the baby coming. If it were born after she was divorced, then married to Dick, everyone would talk. The talk would be the truth. But even if it were the truth it couldn't be admitted. Her baby . . . no . . .

She could not tell Ned—just now.

She would wait until October and then ask Dick what to do. So helpless—so lonely—desolated—no one to turn to—and her own husband reaching over and putting his hand on her knee as she appeared to waken.

"Isn't it fine to be home, dear?" said Ned, putting the key into the door of their apartment, while Anna, her maid, smiled a great welcome, and her dog jumped up and turned into a half-moon to show his joy.

And Mummy ringing on the telephone and asking her to come right over for lunch — poor Mummy had been so lonely—with both David and Enid married.

She went to see Mummy every day, looked into those dear eyes and wondered if Mummy would see in her face. . .

How often she had dreamed and hoped of some day going to her mother and putting her head on her breast and whispering, "Mummy, I'm going to have a baby," and knowing the sweetness of that moment when Mummy's arms would tighten around her and they would both cry.

Now, she couldn't tell Mummy—not yet. It seemed as if she would never be able to tell anybody of the joy in her heart because she had been a sinful woman. She was just like those poor girls she had read stories about. Her child would be born out of wedlock. She must keep her secret as long as possible. Dick would tell her what to do when he came in October.

Keep it a secret! Had Ned noticed how sick she was in the morning and how she could hardly raise her head when he came to kiss her good-bye? She was better by evening, but it was hard to have friends for dinner and go out to parties—she just wanted to lie down all the time, and restaurants made her dizzy. The smoke and the whiffs from the kitchen made her swallow quickly and hold on very tightly to the thought, "I must not give in—some one might know." If Ned had to go to Mexico in November, she told herself, yes, it would be all right until then—she could write him about it. After she had seen Dick—her baby would be all right. Would anything be the matter with it? She must keep calm, or she might lose it. She must take the best care of herself.

Ned had told her that he thought she didn't look well. Well, she'd use more rouge and have facial treatments and rest every afternoon.

The decorators were in the apartment now. How ill the smell of paint made her—but she must stand it.

"How are you going to do the guest room, Enid?" Ned asked her.

Guest room? How she had longed to do it was a gay border of children dancing or queer funny animals walking out of the ark!

"Oh, I don't think it requires anything this year, Ned," she had replied. How could she do it over when she couldn't make it into a nursery?

"Why don't we have old Dick up here to stay with us if you are not going to tear that room up? He hasn't visited us for a dog's age. He'll be here in a few weeks. Suppose we wire him."

Dick—there in the guest room—near her—in the nursery—heavenly—but no—he wouldn't come. No, he wouldn't, but how sweet—

"I think that would be fine," Enid managed to answer. "But he's so funny about always wanting to go to the club or hotel."

Dick did not come to their home when he arrived in New York, but telephoned the moment he reached his hotel. Enid, knowing the day he was expected to arrive, had not left the house for a minute—she couldn't.

With every ring of the telephone she had jumped, hastening to answer it before her maid. And how fidgety she was when one of her friends would get on the wire and spend five minutes telling her what "so and so" had on last night and who else were there. Why—Dick might be trying to get her at that moment. What would she do when she finally heard his voice?

At last it came—that deep "Enid" with such a ring of gentleness to it that her voice caught in her throat as she answered:

"Can you come up to see me now, Dick?"

It was four o'clock. Ned wouldn't be home until six. She could tell Dick everything, and he would know what to do. He always knew what to do.

"Yes, I'll be up in half an hour."

Half an hour. She rushed to her room, stripped off her negligee and prepared to put on the lovely tea-gown which she had planned to wear when she saw him. It was blue. He had told her he liked her in blue—that the color made her eyes look bluer.

The telephone ringing again—some one to bother her. She'd let Anna answer it. She lifted her tea-gown carefully from the bed and started to put one arm through it.

"Mrs. Grier," Anna was hurrying down the hall. Her voice sounded strange. Why was she so white?

"Mrs. Grier—" she couldn't seem to go on.

"What is it, Anna. What is it?"

"Your mother has just been taken very ill—she's in great pain. They've sent for the doctor and want you to come at once."

Mummy — Mummy ill. Why, Enid had been there only the night before and Mummy was splendid. She was going today, but she couldn't leave the house—Dick—

"Get me a taxi," Enid gasped. She threw her tea-gown down in a heap on the floor and took the first dress in her closet. Anna handed her her bag, and pulling her hat down over her head Enid ran to the door.

The moment Enid stepped in her mother's house she felt, throughout the whole house, as if a strange presence pervaded it. What was it—forbidding—sinister—very close?

Enid rushed upstairs to find the doctor bending over her mother. She turned her eyes to Enid and reached out her hand feebly.

"Such terrible pain, Enid."

Two days of anguish followed. Nurses . . . hypodermics . . . the telephone constantly ringing . . . kind friends inquiring. Endless nights. Would the medication take hold? Yes, Mummy was resting at last.

Another cruel attack . . . poor Mummy trying to breathe . . . so brave and patient . . . those brutal needles in her dear arm.

"Sleep now, Mrs. Grier. You are all worn out," a competent nurse urged her. "I'll call you if there is a change."

Sleep — sleep — impossible! To herself Enid cried: "Mummy, you mustn't go and leave me. I need you so just now. Let me tell you everything. Oh, Dick, I know you're thinking of me, and Ned is so kind and thoughtful!"

Then Mummy left her—quietly and peacefully, without pain. She just went to sleep with her hand on Enid's head as she knelt by her. Oh, Mummy — Mummy — oh — Had God taken her away so that she would never know—was God punishing Enid for her sin? Dear God, forgive me—I loved him so.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

A story of years of preparation lies behind "Condemned" the new Ronald Colman starring picture which Samuel Goldwyn brings to the Cliftona Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. At least three of the people concerned with its production—Mr. Goldwyn himself—Mrs. Blair Niles, author of "Condemned! to Devil's Island," the book from which it was adapted—and Wesley Ruggles, director of the picture—had at different times become attracted to the picture sequences and drama of the famous French penal colonies off the South American coast and determined to use them for these unique values, long before "Condemned!" ever came into actual being.

The group of prisons known as "Devil's Island," where incorrigible French convicts are sent to what is the equivalent of living death, hemmed in on all sides by shark-infested seas and fevered jungles, have been famous the world-over ever since Captain Alfred Dreyfus, the center of the great French scandal thirty years ago, was confined there. They came again into world-wide notice some time ago when Eddie Guerin, noted international criminal, escaped from the island, the first man ever to get away alive from the perils of the swamps and jungles.

Three years ago, Mr. Goldwyn became interested in the dramatic aspects of this grim prison colony and planned to utilize it as the setting for a master romance in picture form. At about the same time, Blair Niles, the woman journalist whose studies of conditions and peoples have made her one of the best known figures in literature, was planning a six months' stay on Devil's Island for the purpose of writing a book about it.

She obtained permission from the French government to make this visit, permission which had never been granted before to any writer or investigator and found that conditions were even more startling than she had been led to believe.

SATURDAY

Nature and the film makeup man's magic conspired to produce as grotesquely ugly, malevolent and threatening a group of individuals as could be imagined for some of the scenes in "The Isle of Lost Ships."

This big First National production, dealing with shipwreck in the Sargasso Sea, refuge on a floating island of derelict ships, and battle with the formidable colony there, is at the Cliftona Theatre Saturday.

AT THE GRAND

Mary Duncan with Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe are at the Grand Theatre in "Thru Different Eyes" Sunday and Monday.

Harvey Manning was either guilty or innocent of the slaying of his best friend. Was he ignorant of his wife's notorious amours until that fatal night? Or was he driven by the unwritten law to fire the murderous shots?

Two Collegians in "Cross Country Run" and Universal Talking News are also listed.

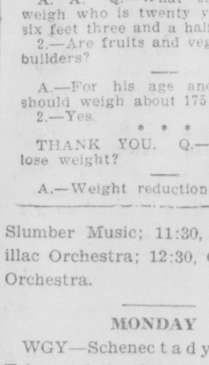
DR. COPELAND SAYS—
INCORRECT CARRIAGE RESTRICTS THE BODY

Bad Posture Quickly Becomes a Habit, Interfering with the Natural Functions of Vital Organs, Says Authority, Urging Upright Position.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN making up a list of what should be done to maintain perfect health, it is easy to overlook many vital things. For instance, posture is a most important matter for health. Correct posture in walking, standing and sitting and correct breathing, are necessary for sound bodies.



DR COPELAND.

Did you ever notice that healthy persons naturally assume an erect attitude? Those who are not well are likely to move and work in a relaxed position.

There are, too, many people, sad to say, who go about, all unthinkingly, with a slouchy, faulty posture. They do not seem to realize that an habitually bad posture may become a habit, and a habit which may lead to poor health.

It wasn't so long ago that it was considered bad manners to sit in any way but a "bolt upright" position. In that position stomach and bowels and all the organs are kept in the right place. You are able to breathe properly. In such a position the weight of the stomach assists the automatic movements of the bowel, so that free excretion results.

When you sit or stand in a correct, upright position your chest is thrown forward free and unrestrained, you are able to fill your lungs with air and to breathe deeply. What is the result? The blood is made to circulate more quickly, stimulating the whole body. You feel more physical vigor, the digestice organs are stimulated to better work.

Perhaps never before in America has so much attention been paid to good posture in children as now. Of course, many of our boys in military school have had the advantage of training in good posture. It is only recently that girls have received as part of their education serious physical training.

Today our public and private schools have their gymnasiums, where the youth of America learns to stand correctly, where poise and good judgment are taught in athletic games. Health is the first consideration in all these supervised pursuits.

We have the Boy and Girl Scout movement, where boys and girls are taught to stand correctly, and the out-of-doors is part and parcel of their lives. Business men take time to go to the gymnasium to keep fit. It is our fault if we do not acquire the right posture.

Are you giving proper attention to everyday exercise and good posture? We all want good health. We should go systematically about getting it. An erect, graceful carriage is an asset anywhere.

One of the most delightful affairs that has been given for Mrs. Earl Delong (Grace Jacobs) was the shower given by her aunt, Miss Georgia Jacobs at her home on Saturday afternoon from two o'clock until five o'clock p. m. One of the most delightful affairs that has been given for Mrs. Earl Delong (Grace Jacobs) was the shower given by her aunt, Miss Georgia Jacobs at her home on Saturday afternoon from two o'clock until five o'clock p. m. Miss Jacobs was assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Will Jacobs and her niece, Mrs. Leo Jarvis of Columbus, O., who acted as official hostess and in her usual charming manner made the occasion very pleasant by conducting several humorous contests, Miss Carrie Umsted winning the prize for one and Miss Alice Hough winning the prize for the other both presenting the prizes to the bride. Each guest was requested to write cooking receipe out and give it to Mrs. Delong. This was cheerfully complied with. A SUGGESTION TO OUR BUS DRIVERS

The two recent accidents which occured at Shreve and Berea make it necessary for bus drivers to take special precaution in order to prevent their more frequent occurence.

Safe driving has been the policy of the bus-driver, Mr. Porter, who conveys the basketball players to the different schools. It is reported that Mr Porter keeps a man on the front seat with him for the purpose of looking out for danger especially at railroad crossings, where he alights and the driver awaits for further notice before proceeding.

Township bus-drivers may accept the following suggestions. Let the two oldest pupils in the truck get out at railroad crossings and give a signal to the driver when it is time to cross in second gear safely. This may take a little extra time, but, nevertheless, time had better be sacrificed than lives.

THAT TEN PER CENT

Over 10 per cent of high school pupils are represented on the honor roll this term. This is a very good showing. Failures this period are on the decrease—a report showing that 85 failures last month were reduced to 50, approximately. Teachers say this is the result of efficient pedagogical methods and close co-operation of pupils.

This fact points out to us that more effort is being made on the part of the pupils. If the students labor a little more during the next term, a still better showing may be made.

CENTRAL BUILDING OFFERS CLOSE COMPETITION

Talk about competition! Schools which make up the Central Buckeye League surely are running a race to win the honor of leading the league. So far ,the scores have been very close, no team defeating another by more than five points.

The following results have been reported: Westerville defeated Circleville and Grandview defeated Granville by one point; Bexley defeated Westerville by two points; Granville defeated Bexley and Circleville defeated Granville by three points, and Bexley defeated Grandview by five points.

ADMITTED TO GAMES AT HALF PRICE

C.H.S. students who wish to join the Circleville High School Tigers' Athletic Association and be admitted to all home and out-of-town contests except those with Grandview, both in basketball and track for half-price may have have an opportunity to do so for 75c according to an announcement by Principal E. I. Gephart.

Join by all means.

A sax solo, "I'm a Dreamer," by Gaylord Rose, who is well known and well liked by assembly audiences. Dance numbers especially arranged for the Joker's Jubilee by Jeanne Crowe and Hugh Cartright, will be some of the many pleasures. A popular theme song will be sung by Mary May Haswell, leading lady of "Yoo-Hoo." She will also be heard in a duet with John Heiskell. Baughman of a family long associated with the theatre. Female colored comedians Jinsy Mader and Helen Yates help put life into the show. Their costumes are gay and unique.

Doris Peters, beautiful but not dumb, is the able interlocutress. A bevy of pretty and talented chorus girls singing old time favorites and the latest jazz hits will keep everybody happy. There's not a scowl in a carload.

So watch for the date when the "Joker Jubilee" train pulls out for "Joyland" and be on board.

A SUGGESTION TO OUR BUS DRIVERS

The two recent accidents which occured at Shreve and Berea make it necessary for bus drivers to take special precaution in order to prevent their more frequent occurence.

Safe driving has been the policy of the bus-driver, Mr. Porter, who conveys the basketball players to the different schools. It is reported that Mr. Porter keeps a man on the front seat with him for the purpose of looking out for danger especially at railroad crossings, where he alights and the driver awaits for further notice before proceeding.

Township bus-drivers may accept the following suggestions: Let the two oldest pupils in the truck get out at railroad crossings and give a signal to the driver when it is time to cross in second gear safely. This may take a little extra time, but, nevertheless, time had better be sacrificed than lives.

THAT TEN PER CENT

Over 10 per cent of high school pupils are represented on the honor roll this term. This is a very good showing. Failures this period are on the decrease—a report showing that 85 failures last month were reduced to 50, approximately. Teachers say this is the result of efficient pedagogical methods and close co-operation of pupils.

This fact points out to us that more effort is being made on the part of the pupils. If the students labor a little more during the next term, a still better showing may be made.

CENTRAL BUILDING OFFERS CLOSE COMPETITION

Talk about competition! Schools which make up the Central Buckeye League surely are running a race to win the honor of leading the league. So far the scores have been very close, no team defeating another by more than five points.

The following results have been reported: Westerville defeated Circleville and Grandview defeated Granville by one point; Bexley defeated Westerville by two points; Granville defeated Bexley and Circleville defeated Granville by three points, and Bexley defeated Grandview by five points.

ADMITTED TO GAMES AT HALF PRICE

C.H.S. students who wish to join the Circleville High School Tigers' Athletic Association and be admitted to all home and out-of-town contests except those with Grandview, both in basketball and track for half-price may have have an opportunity to do so for 75c according to an announcement by Principal E. I. Gephart.

Specialties will be as follows: A vocal solo, "Singin' in the Rain" rendered by Howard Greeno, who has been seen in almost all of the late plays at C. H. S. A sax solo, "I'm a Dreamer," by Gaylord Rose, who is well known and well liked by assembly audiences. Dance numbers especially arranged for the Joker's Jubilee by Jeanne Crowe and Hugh Cartright, will be some of the many pleasures. A popular theme song will be sung by Mary May Haswell, leading lady of "Yoo-Hoo." She will also be heard in a duet with John Heiskell. These two were well liked in "Belle of Barcelona" and should be pleasing again. Peggy Courtright the "belle" of Barcelona, Ellen Leist, Ed. Baughman of a family long associated with the theatre. Female colored comedians Jinsy Mader and Helen Yates help put life into the show. Their costumes are gay and unique.

Doris Peters, beautiful but not dumb, is the able interlocutress. A bevy of pretty and talented chorus girls singing old time favorites and the latest jazz hits will keep everybody happy. There's not a scowl in a carload.

So watch for the date when the "Joker Jubilee" train pulls out for "Joyland" and be on board.
